A Message from Tyler:

On Sunday, we will read Exodus 17: 1-17, a passage where the Israelite people "grumble" to Moses about not having water.

I have always heard that term, grumble. But we should think more deeply about what is going on. The people are traveling with their belongings and cattle through the desert. Scientifically speaking, they would need A LOT of water in order to make this journey. They have already experienced a water source that they couldn't drink from earlier in the book.

So, this "grumbling" is more of the stress of a life or death situation. They don't trust Moses to lead them to life. But God responds to their desperation by having Moses strike a rock, which would have been plentiful where they are traveling. The people are once again spared by the grace and gift of God.

May we who find ourselves seeking desperately for something find that gift in God.
